FAMOUS WRITERS ON BREADLOAF STAFF

Dean Davison Announces Personnel of Summer School Faculty

VALUABLE COURSES ARE TO BE OFFERED

Untermeyer, Pattee, Farrar, Sandburg Among Lecturers

The program for the sixth session of The School of English, which will be held at Bread Loaf from June 30 to August 14, is attracting much attention, especially among High school teachers of English. In addition to the staff of regular instructors, an especially attractive list of special lectures by well known writers has been arranged.

The visiting lecturers for the summer are Marguerite Wilkinson, Fred Lewis Pattee, Hamlin Garland, Carl Sandburg, Louis Untermeyer Jahn Farrar, and Rollo W. Brown. In addition to their lectures before the School as a whole, these writers will meet members of the School in personal conferences on their problems in creative writing. Most of the lecturers will remain several days at Bread Loaf.

Mrs. Wilkinson is widely known as the author of "New Voices," and other critical writings on recent poetry, as well as for her own poems, "The Great Dream", etc. She is a member of The Poetry Society of America, the Authors' League of America, and is popular as a lecturer on contemporary poetry.

Doctor Pattee is one of the great authorities on American Literature, known especially for "American History Since 1870" and "The Development of the American Short Story". He is chairman of the section on American Literature of the Modern Language Association of America. He is a member of the faculty of Pennsylvania State College. He published this winter a book of critical essays, "Tradition and Jazz", which has aroused vigorous comment

Louis Untermeyer, critic and poet, is the author of "American Poetry Since 1900", the compiler of widely used an-

WORCESTER TIES NETMEN IN OPENER

Tennis Match Ends in 3-3 Tie When Opponents Take the Last Two

Middlebury opened her 1925 tennis season Saturday when Worcester forced the Blue team into a tie 3-3. The team took an early lead over Worcester and with two matches to be played led 3-1. However, a loss in the first singles and in the doubles made the final score a tie.

Captain Rich, playing his last season for Middlebury, started auspiciously by leading Irons all the way to a victory 6-4, 3-6, 6-3. Rich, playing with an injured leg, had little difficulty in defeating his opponent. Twichell and Adams playing second doubles worked well together and scored a straight set victory over Chou and Franks 6-4, 6-4. Clever work by both the Middlebury men kept the visitors in check.

On the third court Middlebury lost her first point when Kranz defeated Hindes in two sets. Hindes playing his first match for the Blue played well but had difficulty with Kranz' speed. Hickcox gave Middlebury a two point lead when he ran away with Franks. Worcester cut the lead down when the two number one men met. Chou beating Wolfskehl in straight sets. The

JUNIORS FEAST ON SENIOR FOOD

For the first time in a number of years the Juniors made away with the Senior Breakfast, an annual event which is accompanied by much secrecy on the part of the outgoing class. The Juniors have always aimed either to learn of the time and place where this breakfast is to be held, or knowing this, to succeed in "busting up" the affair. And so the class of 1926 planned theirs carefully and last Friday morning sneaked out at five o'clock to the Boathouse to enjoy the "feed". Mabel Thornley, of the class of 1926, hearing the stealthy steps of the honorable Seniors, rose to the occasion and awakened the Juniors. A battle ensued in which, though they fought bravely, the Seniors were defeated and returned to Battell cottage for nourishment.

TRACK TEAM MEETS INITIAL SET-BACK OF SEASON AT AMHERST

Cass and Donald Star But Injuries Cripple Squad Seriously

The varsity track team met its first defeat of the season on last Friday, when the Amherst team won a 90½ to 43½ point victory in the third dual meet of the season at Amherst. The Blue team was handicapped by the absences of Happ and Carboy, who were suffering from injuries sustained in the R. P. I. meet the week before.

"Bill" Donald had a big day winning first in both the half mile run and the 440 yard dash. The time for the 440 was 53 flat which is very good considering the condition of the track. In the half mile run Donald galloped around in 2:3 1-5, nosing out Low of Amherst by a wide margin. "Al" Cass won the discus throw and Westfall placed third. Cass was high point man for Middlebury, winning first in both the discus throw and javelin throw.

Only two men placed in the 120 yard high hurdles due to the fact that Shaeffer did not finish and an Amherst man was disqualified. Drew of Amherst placed first and Whitney finished second. Whiting finished third in the two mile run for Middlebury, which was run in 10:11 4-5.

The Undergraduate Association at its annual election held last night chose R. Laurence Rice, jr., '26, of Niagara Falls, N. Y., as its president for the coming year. The winner, who is one of the most popular and most active men in his class, received on the first ballot a majority of the votes cast for the five candidates.

fred Knowles '26 of Boston, Mass., was named vice president. Tse final ballot on the other two offices will not be counted until this afternoon. Gordon E. Wiley and Russell Tobey were voted on for secretary and Carl J. Ellsworth and Mervin W. McCutcheon for treasurer. Student Council members elected were Walter A. Potter '26, Harry J. Frank '26, William F. Fales '27, F. Wallace Patch '27, and Cecil A. Lockwood '28.

Rice, the new undergraduate president, has probably been more prominent in all phases of college activities than any other man in college. During the present year he has been a member of the varsity teams in football, basketball and baseball, has been treasurer of his class, treasurer of the Undergraduate Association, chairman of the Junior Week invitations committee and a member of the vocational guidance committee. He is captain-elect of basketball for next season. During his sophomore year he was the winner of the Kellogg prize for excellency in Latin. He is a member of Delta Tau and Delta Kappa Epsilon and a pledge of Waubanakee, the senior honorary society.

Knowles, who received a large number of votes for the presidency, was elected vice president by a large majority. He is a letter man in basketball, is president of the junior class, a member of Sages and Chi Psi and a Waubanakee pledge.

ALPHA SIGMA PHI GOES NATIONAL

A telegram was received by the Alpha Sigma Phi, local fraternity of Middlebury from the convention of the Alpha Sigma Phi national last Saturday informing them that a charter had been granted them. The charter members of the petitioning society will be installed at Cambridge, Mass., this Saturday. The installation of the local chapter will take place later. This is the third local to be granted a national charter in the past three months. Middlebury now boasts of seven national fraternities and no locals.

Alpha Sigma Phi national was founded at Yale College as a Sophomore honorary society in 1846. The present fraternity was reorganized and incorporated in 1907. The local chapter was founded in 1911.

VERMONT BETA OF SIGMA PHI EPSILON IS INSTALLED HERE

Local Fraternity Officially Taken Into Large Organization

One more national was added to Middlebury's list of fraternities Saturday, May 16, when the local Sigma Phi Iota was installed as Vermont Beta of Sigma Phi Epsilon. Three alumni and twenty-one active members were initiated during the two days, Friday and Saturday. The chapter was officially installed on Saturday afternoon, and a formal installation banquet was held in the evening at the Addison House, with sixty men present from the various New England chapters, Syracuse Alpha, and Virginia Alpha.

Sigma Phi Epsilon is one of the leading fraternities of the country, having an enrollment of fifty-two chapters, four of which are located at colleges in New England, Vermont Alpha at Norwich, New Hampshire Alpha at Dartmouth, and Massachusetts Alpha at Mass. Agricultural College. It is exceedingly strong in the South and West, and has chapters in nearly all the states in the East. It was founded in 1901 at Richmond College, Virginia.

Representatives from the chapters in the East included W. L. Phillips of Virginia Alpha, Grand Secretary of the fratrnity; Leland A. Wilson, ex'26, from New York Alpha; ten men from Massachusetts Alpha, ten from Vermont Alpha, and thirteen from New Hampshire Alpha. Among the men from Massachusetts Alpha were "Cherry" Dodge, district deputy of Sigma Phi Epsilon, and Leone E. Smith '14, who was influential in the founding of Sigma Phi Iota at Middlebury in 1922.

The alumni who came back for the installation included D. Haydn Parry, ex-'24, John H. White '24, and Everett S. Kinloch ex-'26. The following were initiated as charter members of Vermont Beta of Sigma Phi Epsilon: Albert B. Cass '25, H. Erwin Curtis '25, Reginald W. Eastman '25, Clarence E. Sturtevant '25, J. Audrey Clark '26, E. Milton Egan '26, C. Vincent Grant '26, E. Murray Hoyt '26, E. Victor Montandon '26, Lindley W. Robinson '26, Stanley M. Sargent '26, Russell A. Seavey '26, John E. Van Hoven '26, John S. Dinkel '27, Harold M. Fisher '27, H. Hamilton Jones '27, Celian H. Abbott '28, Phillip E. Dempsey '28, Afton B. Hilliard '28, Clayton C. Jones '28, and Vernet S. Keller '28.

The Commencement Program published in last week's CAMPUS is subject to revisions. Changes are to be expected, but the final order of events will be issued soon.

LAURENTIANS HAND DRUBBING TO BLUE

Burkman of St. Lawrence Fans Eleven of Blue's Batters

TEAM UNABLE TO CONNECT WITH BALL

Norwich Whitewashes Nine As Losing Streak Continues

The varsity twirlers continued their losing slump on Monday when they were defeated by St. Lawrence 10-1 on Porter Field. The Blue batsmen did not get started until late in the ninth inning, when Novotny doubled scoring Whitney who had reached first on a single. The rally came too late to be of any real value as far as the score was concerned as there were two men out before Whitney scored and the next man struck out just after he scored.

Burkman of St. Lawrence pitched a good game, allowing only five hits and striking out eleven men. Klevenow played at first in place of Hasseltine, who was out of the lineup because of injuries.

The first inning was scoreless but in the second Bowler singled, scoring Burkman and a few minutes later Papp singled, sending in Bowler for the second run. Chester flied out to Banks ending the first half of the inning. Conley and Banks were thrown out at first and Klevenow fanned, which ended Middlebury's half of the inning at bat. Williams, the St. Lawrence lanky first sacker drove out a long fly in the third inning for a home run, after two men had been thrown out at first. Kilbride lined out a pretty Texas leaguer in this inning, but was put out at second when he was caught off base by the second baseman.

In the fourth inning "Joe" Novotny put out the first man up when he caught Bruce's fly one handed after a sprint from deep left field. Sullivan and Bowler were put out in rapid succession by Kilbride on foul flies. St. Lawrence scored again in both the fifth and sixth innings, but the seventh and

FACULTY PLAYERS PRESENT "MOLLUSC"

Clever Comedy Produced In Playhouse Last Night by Capable Cast

The faculty group of the College Dramatic Club presented H. H. Davis' three-act comedy "The Molusc" at the Playhouse last evening for the benefit of the Woman's Club.

"The Molusc" is a very clever play based upon the mollusc-like characteristics of certain human beings who cling to some one spot, letting the tides float over their heads and letting others attend to all needs for activity. Such a person was Mrs. Baxter, with Mr. Baxter and especially Miss Roberts to wait on her, until her brother Tom Kent, arrived and with the aid of trying circumstances snapped Mrs. Baxter out of her mollusc-state and deprived her of Miss Roberts, by falling in love with that erstwhile slave. The faculty actors made good use of the play's potentialities and gave a very enjoyable presentation to a very appreciative audience.

The cast of "The Mollusc" was as follows:

Tom Kent----------Mr. L. I. Bonney
Mr. Baxter---------Mr. W. S. Burrage
Mrs. Baxter------Mrs. L. J. Hathaway
Miss Roberts----------Miss Gaylor

Honorary Societies

Should a college honorary society exist merely for the sake of giving honor to its members or should it serve some definite purpose in the institution? This seems to be a problem that is troubling many colleges. In many cases, these societies merely elect members annually and then cease to function for the remainder of the year. Although election to membership is considered to be an honor, the society itself is a rather hollow affair for it does nothing. Realizing the uselessness of such organizations, some colleges have discontinued them in the past few years.

Middlebury, however, has three honorary societies which do a real work in the college as well as conferring distinction upon certain students by electing them to membership. Sages, the junior society, has perhaps performed the most notable service to the college during the present year. The work of this organization in promoting intra-mural athletics has been most commendable. The interfraternity basketball series conducted by the Sages during the winter was the most successful intra-mural series that Middlebury has had in any sport for several years. At the present time a base ball series is being conducted which promises to be a success even though a late start was made. Such work as this is really worth-while and stamps the men of this society as being worthy of the honor which was given them by their election. Delta Tau and Waubanakee, also, have not been content to rest upon their laurels but have shown that they are wide-awake organizations As long as these societies keep up their enviable record, their existence will be wholly justified and election to their number will truly be considered as a great honor.

Self-Control

In these days of liberty of action and speech, little ttention is paid to one of the greatest attributes of a successful life—self-control. Psychology teaches us that in time any tendency which is not exercised will disappear. There is no imminent danger of the loss of our ability to govern ourselves in this generation at least, but we are building the basis of the heritage which is to be passed on to the coming generation. If we so weaken ourselves by persistent surrendering to temptation, how can we expect our descendants to possess the ability to keep themselves above the ever-growing mass of useless and futile distractions? As in all things, various degrees of self-control are evident. We are all familiar with the type of modern individual who does nothing but things which bring pleasure to himself alone and we are thankful that few, if any, such specimens exist in our midst. None of us is perfect and often we surrender ourselves to momentary conditions. This in itself isn't particularly bad at the time, but it is the habit that we are slowly forming which later causes trouble. It is one of Nature's laws that a thing which is done once with a pleasing result will be repeated. Generally in the case of loss of self-control we give in to something which offers the least resistence and the most pleasure for the moment. The worst of it is that we do it again and again until finally we have incorporated a weak habit into our lives.

Not only should we consider the injustice we are doing the future generations in weakening their powers of self-control, but we should all think seriously of the harm we are bringing upon ourselves. Each time we neglect duty for pleasure or right for wrong we injure ourselves. The pleasure obtained from doing the easier, more enjoyable thing in preference to the harder, is never so great as the feeling of satisfaction derived from the knowledge that one has faced and accomplished the difficult thing. The temporary, shallow pleasure can in no way compensate for what we may later be forced to endure. If only we could realize at the time the suffering our weakness may later cause us, we might perhaps endeavor to control ourselves to a greater extent. We cannot give in to the easy things without paying for it in the future either by loss of responsibility or the gradual depreciation of our value and importance to the world. We are all here for a purpose and in the natural course of events we have something to lay on the altar of life. How small and unassuring our contributions will be if we have not learned the secret of self-mastery. Steel is not good unless finely tempered. Likewise we are worthless unless we have been tempered by self-control.

Undergraduates who have become familiarized with the rules, and traditions of this college are apt to hold in little esteem, a handbook which attempts to present some of the more important facts about Middlebury. But if they will recall the days when they were registered as sub-freshmen expectantly waiting the opening of college in September, they will remember that every scrap of information about Middlebury was eagerly devoured. Last year, no handbook was published. This year, the task has been assumed by the Middlebury Christian Association. That organization has undertaken a worthy task and it deserves the support of all who can in any way contribute to the success of this handbook.

MID-SHIPMEN

By the time Hanks gets another consignment of those navy blue sailor trousers which have suddenly ridden the crest of the wave of popular approval, Middlebury will take on all appearances of the naval academy. Some of the "hearties" have developed quite a rolling gait already. The Bookstore might do well to lay in a supply of hard tack and sea chests.

Matthew Neveruse, our friend the statistician, confidentially whispered to us the other day, that he has figured that if all the time spent on recording, verifying, excusing, and posting cuts was grouped togetheer, we could have three days additional vacation at Easter and enough left over to play three sets of tennis and a game of handball.

CHAPEL NOTICE

"All women coming from rural districts please remain after chapel."

Of the two hundred and fifty-nine women registered in college, 258 remained. It is reported that the missing sister had cut chapel that day she having been required to remain at home and assist with the churning.

A STORY

Chapter One

Once upon a time a Middlebury co-ed was invited to attend a prom at Dartmouth or Williams. (Of course dear readers this was very, very long ago). There she met a man (Freshman probably) with whom she fell deeply in love. He promised to write.

Chapter Two

One week passed, two, three, 4, cinq, and still no letter. Dark doubts and misgivings crowded thru her mind. Why didn't he write? Could it possibly be that insidious thing—what is it the Blue Baboon speaks of when your breath is off color? Finally Tommy, the mail man brought her a letter.

Chapter Three

Jugs of joy swelled in her heart. With fervid haste she tore open the envelop. It was a bill from Calvi's.

THIS "OTTER RHYME"

That her first name is Prudence is true,
But she jumped in a college canoe;
Yet before she got set,
She sorter got wet,
As a Fish in the water must do.

CAST SELECTED FOR COMMENCEMENT PLAY

"Mr. Pim Passes By" to be The Last Production of the Year

"Mr. Pim Passes By," a comedy by A. A. Milne, has been chosen by the Dramatic Club for the commencement play this year, and rehearsals are already well under way. The cast selected is an all-star one and this will be the last opportunity for Middlebury audiences to see some of their outstanding favorites. The fine work which the Dramatic Club has been doing thruout the year insures to the commencement production an interpretation in every way creditable to the club and college alike.

The plot of "Mr. Pim Passes By" turns upon the way in which the absent minded Mr. Pim, who is merely a passerby, inadvertently brings first disaster and then happiness to the Mardens. The play furnishes an opportunity for excellent comedy, clever characterization and is thoroughly enjoyed wherever given.

The cast is as follows:

George Marden M. P.——R. Rapport
Olivia, his wife——Dorothy Johnson
Dinah, his niece——Verna Scott
Lady Julia Marden,—Katherine Abel
Brian Strange, engaged to Dinah
——Paul Ward
Carraway Pim——L. E. Lebowitz
Anne, the maid——Eleanor Frost

Because of the limited capacity of the Playhouse auditorium and since practically all the seats for the commencement week production will have to be reserved for returning alumni and friends of the senior class it has been decided to give an earlier production for the benefit of the undergraduates on June 4. Announcement as to the arrangements for the sale of seats for this first production will be given in next week's CAMPUS.

KALEIDOSCOPE REVIEW

For the first time in the history—or at least the recent history—of Middlebury, a fairy story came true. Each year when a new editor of the Kaleidoscope is elected his first promise to his class and the student body is that the Kaleidoscope will positively apper Junior Week. To Mr. Hawthorne and his very capable staff must go the credit for making this promise a reality. Nor has the quality of the book been lowered in any way. The 1926 Kaleidoscope is well-organized, being featured by some of the finest views of the campus that have ever been printed.

Each year the Kaleidoscope board choses some member of the faculty to whom it dedicates its book. Last year Mr. Rich introduced a novel idea in dedicating the 1925 Kaleidoscope to Gamaliel Painter, that eminent and much-heralded founder who left to Middlebury his cane. But instead of dedicating the 1926 Kaleidoscope to any faculty member or alumnus, living or dead, Mr. Hawthorne has placed his class' year book in a distinctive classification by dedicating it to "the spirit of the hills." Perhaps not all have noticed this. The writer believes it especially appropriate for there is not a man or woman who passes from the sacred portals of our Alma Mater who has not felt that that great spirit is ever an inspiration, a driving incentive to attaining the high goal in life.

It would be unjust in reviewing this publication not to pay some tribute to Mr. Clark and his business staff. It is a practical certainty that the book will be a financial success which means that the 1926 Kaleidoscope must enjoy another unique and distinct honor for no other year-book has been that in this college generation. The women's glee club is to sing in Vergennes Friday evening.

Famous Literary Folk to be At Breadloaf This Summer

thologies of the contemporary poetry of England and America, besides being the author of several volumes of poems, "Challenge", etc. Mrs. Jean Starr Untermyer, also well known as a poet, will accompany her husband to Bread Loaf.

John Farrar is editor of "The Bookman" and holds an important editorial position in the publishing house of George H. Doran & Co. He has published a volume of poems, "The Middle Twenties", has written plays, and has lectured widely on literary subjects.

Hamlin Garland, author of "A Son of the Middle Border", has been a force in American literature for many years through his many novels and short stories, as well as through his leadership and critical writings.

Carl Sandburg has exerted great influence on contemporary poetry through his various volumes, "Chicago Poems", "Smoke and Steel", etc., and has recently delighted the public with his children's stories in "Rootabaga Pigeons."

Rollo W. Brown is the author of "How the French Boy Learns to Write", "The Writer's Art", etc., and contributes to Harper's Magazine and other periodicals. His recent book, "The Creative Spirit", was highly commended by Stuart Sherman in a recent article in his weekly review, "Books" Professor Brown has dectured widely on Australian Literature, Education in France, and The Creative Spirit. In addition to his extensive literary work, he has had rich experience in college teaching.

The Staff

The Bread Loaf bulletin lists twelve courses in Methods of Teaching, Literature, and Dramatic Production, to be given by the eleven members of the regular staff of the School. Dean Wilfred E. Davison and Doctor and Mrs. Vernon C. Harrington, of Middlebury, have been members of the staff from the beginning of the School in 1920. Other members of the staff who have been previously at Bread Loaf are Leonora Branch, A. M., Asst. Professor in English, Mount Holyoke College; Sidney Cox, A. M., Associate Professor of English, The University of Montana; Donald M. Oenslager, A. B., of the Provincetown Playhouse, New York City; Ruth H. Spoor, formerly of The Artistic and Producing Force of the 47 Workshop.

Five teachers have been added to the staff this year: Professor Robert M. Gay, Litt. D., Head of the English Department of Simmons College; Morris E. Speare, Ph. D., Professor of English in The University of Maryland; Mrs. Florence L. Speare, Formerly Director of Speech Education at Goucher College; Edith R. Mirrielees, A. B., Assistant Professor of English, Stanford University; Lucia M. Mirrielees, Ph. D., Assistant Professor of English, the University of Montana.

The Courses

Professor Cox will give the course in Creative Writing. After his visit to Bread Loaf last summer, John Farrar wrote in The Gossip Shop in "The Bookman": "We find it difficult to pay adequate tribute to the place, for it gave us a new inspiration to go on with the work of the winter, and it also gave us four or five excellent contributions for the magazine, so stimulating did the various courses seem to be to creative writing. We were particularly struck with that of Sidney Cox, a brilliant young professor from the State University of Montana, whose methods are unusual, and whose results are amazing." Professor Cox is a graduate of Bates College and received the degree of A. M., at the University of Illinois. He has had wide teaching experience in both High school and college and brings to his work valuable personal experience as a writer.

RUTLAND PASTOR TALKS ON GROWTH

Threefold Ideal Of Christ Forms Theme For Sermon

Rev. Morgan S. Ashley spoke at vespers on the text, Luke 2:52: "And Jesus increased in wisdom and stature, and in favor with God and man." "That is all that is said of Jesus' life from the time of his twelfth birthday to his manhood," said Mr. Ashley, "yet those words show the potential life of every man and woman. Jesus shirked no chance to learn from the rabbi and so increased in wisdom. In all things he played his part to the best of his ability and so grew in stature. He grew to manhood, showing us the joyful way of life, for he desired happiness, too, and did not allow the growth of wisdom and stature to outweigh other important things. For Jesus was always a favorite, as we may be if we, too, but do our best in playing the game of life. He has a right to expect of us that we increase in favor with God and our fellow men.

"Now are days of preparations. Every day is an opportunity. To have this we must fulfill our given tasks each day and every day. And as we increase in the things of God, and grow in womanhood and manhood, so do we increase in favor. May we increase in wisdom now, for college life is a beginning, and let us increase in the favor of God. As Christ has led the way, let us follow. Let us offer ourselves to be a sacrifice, that he may use us as he sees fit. Then we will enter the Land of Our Desire and be acclaimed by all in the favor of God."

Folk Dancing Class Gives Exhibition

A very effective exhibition was given at Hamlin Hall, Thursday afternoon, by the members of the folk dancing class. Practices have been held twice a week since last fall, under the direction of Miss Mary Rosevear and the results were most satisfying.

The entire class first gave an exhibition of the technique which they have been practicing, and then danced a Gavotte in a most animated manner. Eight girls, dressed in colonial costumes did a Minuet. A Mexican dance was executed by three of the girls followed by an Italian costume dance. Miss Verna Scott did one of her famous Spanish dances and Miss Anna Lewis very charmingly did an interpretative dance called "Little Miss Muffit."

The advance classes in biology are to have their first annual outing at Breadloaf on Saturday.

St. Lawrence and Norwich Score Wins Over Panther

eighth innings were scoreless. Witham replaced Towne on the mound in the seventh.

In the seventh Whitney led off for Middlebury and was put out at first, but Novotny landed on one of Burkman's offerings for a clean three bagger, the only one in the game. However, Conley struck out and Banks was thrown out at first by the smooth working infield. So the Blue team's first bid for scoring died almost as soon as it had been made.

In the ninth the visitors landed on Jack Witham's delivery for a total of five runs, while many errors by the infield did not help matters any. Rice was sent in to bat for Witham in the ninth and struck out. Papke struck out, Whitney singled and scored on Novotny's double, Conley went to first and Novotny reached third and Banks was thrown out at first, ending the game.

Norwich 3, Middlebury 0

Playing in their fourth state series game within a week, the Middlebury diamond men met the Norwich Cadets at Northfield last Wednesday and after one of the tightest pitcher's battles of the season were turned back by a 3 to 0 score.

The same pitchers who battled against each other here during Junior Week met again on the drill grounds at the University, and although Witham was touched for only four hits while Williams gave five, those taken from the Black Panther twirler were turned into runs.

Morey's men simply could not find the ball. They gave Jack Witham good support in the field, in spite of the fact that the illness of Mike Papke, short stop, and Hasseltine, first baseman, caused a shift in the regular positions.

DRAMA REVIEW

The Finger of God
Cast

Valet ---------- Richard Gould '28
Mr. Strickland -------- Vernet Keller '28
Office Girl ---------- Marion Morgan '27

"The Finger of God", a one-act play by Percival Wilde, was presented at a meeting of the Dramatic Club last Thursday evening, under the direction of Dorothy Johnson '25. The rather simple plot of the play depended almost wholly upon the dialogue, which was exceptionally well handled. We are quite well acquainted with Mr. Gould by this time but Mr. Keller was new to us and we liked him. Miss Morgan filled the feminine role successfully. And this was one play of the evening in which the prompter's services were not required.

Enter the Hero
Cast

Ruth ---------- Ellen Rowley '27
Anne ---------- Margaret Sedgwick '27
Hal ---------- Harold Fisher '27
Mother ---------- Lucia Goldthorpe '26

"E ter the Hero" is a decidedly amusing play but it takes just about all of one's sense of humor to stand such a dose of sentimentality even on the stage. Miss Spooner directed this and deserves credit for putting on a play with some real acting in it. Miss Rowley was very good; Miss Sedgwick very pretty as well as sentimental; and Mr. Fisher's acting, if not strong, was surely commendable. With the play as a whole the audience was well entertained.

The Wonder Hat
Cast

Harlequin ---------- Albert Leahy '28
Pierrot ---------- Oscar Cooley '25
Vendor of Magic ---- Celian Abbott '28
Columbine ---------- Pauline Cross '27
Maid ---------- Leila Wallace '25

"The Wonder Hat", really the star production of the evening, centered about a hat which made its wearer invisible and a slipper which added much to the irresistibility of its feminine wearer. Harlequin had a lovely time remaining unseen and Pierrot seemed strangely fickle when Columbine and her maid changed shoes. "Al" Leahy was best of all, we thought: his bearing was especiallly fine and his whole performance most enjoyable. Mr. Abbott ranks a close second, having played an unusual and difficult role unusually well. Mr. Cooley, Miss Cross and Miss Wallace took their parts aptly and we exte d congratulations to Mr. Lebowitz '25, director. Our one criticism is that the ending of the play, unexpected and peculiar as it was, might have been managed somewhat more skillfully.

New Plan Provides For More Dormitory Space

Room drawings for the men's college were held yesterday afternoon. To accommodate as many as possible of the large freshman class which is to enter next fall, several changes have been made for the coming year in the arrangement of rooms, particularly in Painter Hall. Several of the suites will be divided and each of the two large rooms thus formed will be assigned to two students. Also some of the offices now in Painter Hall will be transferred to the Old Chapel.

In Hepburn an experiment will be tried for one year allowing students with good scholastic standing to room three in a suite instead of two as now.

CHORAL CLUB PRESENTS "CREATION"

Haydn's Oratorio to be Sung in Mead Chapel Friday Evening

Haydn's masterpiece, "The Creation" will be sung in Mead Memorial Chapel Friday evening at eight o'clock by the Middlebury Choral Club, Professor Hathaway conducting. The soloists will be: Mrs. Bonney, Dr. H. I. Slocum, Mr. B. S. Stewart, Mr. Bradford Newcombe and Rev. E. W. Gould. The accompanists will be: Mrs. Maynard, Mrs. Edward Powell, Miss Gaylor and Miss Slayton.

This is the third Oratorio presented by this organization and the success of the two previous performances warrants enthusiasm at this one. "The Creation" is in three parts beginning with a short introduction representing chaos. Gradually the gloom vanishes and disorder begins to yield to order. By God's hand the firmament is made. Land and water are divided, the sea arises and rocks emerge, rivers flow over the plains, fragrant flowers and herbs are created, and fishes, beasts and wild birds come into existence. But even yet the earth is not complete for a wondrous thing is needed to give gratitude to God—Adam is formed and on his bosom leans his mate, Eve. The work contains many majestic choruses and beautiful trios, duets and solos.

Do You Know
That from April on to June, Lexington and Concord, Arlington and Cambridge, with the residents along the line of the famous march from Boston to Concord in 1775, are playing host to the American Nation? This is the sesquicentennial of the colonists' first armed resistance to the mother country.
The events of that memorable day are celebrated in verse, story and moving picture. It is an American epic and needs no retelling. Today Lexington and Concord are shrines of the nation, and this year thousands more will make their pilgrimage to these historic spots. It is said that the guest book of the Hancock-Clarke House at Lexington contains more signatures than any other historic place in the country.

lish will be given by Miss Lucia Mirrielees. After study at Stanford University, the University of California, and Teachers' College, Columbia, Miss Mirrielees received her Doctor's degree from Stanford University, her thesis being a study of American university training in English of prospective High school teachers. She has had experience in teaching English in both High school and college, was for two years in charge of student teachers at the training school connected with the University of California, and has studied the teaching of English and teacher training methods in England and France. An interesting article of hers was published in the January number of "The English Journal."

Mrs. Speare will give a course in Literature Interpretation, which is especially designed to aid the teacher in the class-room. It will include training in the fundamentals of speech and the vocal interpretation of the spirit and form of English prose and poetry. Mrs. Speare, a charter member of the 47 Workshop, was for several years Assistant Dramatic Critic of the Boston Herald. She had published short stories a novel, and a number of plays, among them "The Case of the Jonses", the first Harvard Prize Play to be accepted by the Keith Theatres. She was Producer and part-author of the Pilgrim Tercentary Pageant, "The Birth of America", presented as the Souther celebration in 1920. In addition to her experience as Director of the Department of Drama and Expression in Goucher College in 1919-20, she was Lecturer in English in John Hopkins University in 1920-21.

Dr. Harrington's course in Browning is considered one of the best courses given at Bread Loaf. Dr. Harrington is a graduate of Middlebury College and of Andover Theological Seminary. He was for a time a graduate student at Harvard University, and for two years studied in Europe, traveling widely on the Continent and studying at the University of Berlin and at Oxford University. Following pastorates of several years in Massachusetts and Ohio, he became a member of the English Department of Oberlin College. He came to Middlebury in 1913 as Assistant Professor of English and Public Speaking, served a year as Professor of English, and in 1917 became Boardman Professor of Philosophy at Middlebury. He received the degree of L. H. D. in 1908 from the University of Worcester. His publications include "The Problem of Human Suffering", and "Browning Studies", and introduction to the study of Browning which has aroused much favorable comment. Dr. Harrington's presentation of the Pompilia monologue from "The Ring and Book", which it is hoped he will give again this summer, has been one of the outstanding events in the rich series of programs given at the School.

Miss Leonora Branch, who gives the course in Literary Appreciation, is a graduate of Smith College and took her Master's degree at Wellesley. She taught for three years at Vassar College, and is at present a member of the English faculty at Mount Holyoke College. Her training has been enriched by extensive travel in this country and in England and Italy. As a writer, she has printed privately a volume of poems and has occasionally contributed poems and reviews to various papers and journals.

Miss Edith Mirrielees, who will give the course in The Short Story has done graduate work at Stanford University, the University of California, and the University of Chicago. Miss Mirrielees is a writer whose short stories have been included in anthologies such as "Atlantic Narratives", and "Representative Stories". "Professor Boynton Rereads History", published in The Atlantic Monthly last August, was chosen by the O. Henry Memorial Volume Committee for the 1924 volume. Miss Mirrielees has had rich experience in teaching both the history and the writing of the short story.

Doctor Speare will give two courses, "The American Novel, and Modern Drama. His book, "The Political Novel", recently published by the Oxford University Press, "has been called by 'The Bookman' the most valuable study of that important development in modern English and American literature that we have yet read. It has been recommended in a special announcement of the Club Service of the Department of the General Federation of Women's Clubs. Professor Speare is a graduate of Harvard, received his A. M. from that institution and his Ph. D. from Johns Hopkins University. He has taught in several important institutions, including The University of Wisconsin, the U. S. Naval Academy, and the summer sessions of Harvard and the University of California. He has published several books and numerous reviews and papers in important literary journals.

The course in Contemporary Poetry will be given by Professor Gay, President of the New England Association of Teachers of English in 1924-5, Professor Gay is a graduate of Polytechnic Institute of Brooklyn, received his A. M. from Columbia and the degree of Litt. D. from Dickinson College. He has had teaching experience in private preparatory schools, Goucher College, and in the Summer School of Johns Hopkins University. He has published several volumes, "Writing Through Reading", "Fact, Fancy and Opinion", etc., and contributes frequently to The Atlantic Monthly. Professor Gay was recommended to Bread Loaf by Doctor Robert Frost.

The courses in Dramatic Production will be given by Mr. Censlager and Miss Spoor, who will have charge together of the Laboratory in Play Production, which furnishes training in acting, directing, and the staging of the plays presented weekly in Little Theatre.

Mr. Oenslager will give the course in Theory of Play Production and Miss Spoor that in Theory and Practice of Stage Design. Both Mr. Oenslager and Miss Spoor were trained in The 47 Workshop and were brought to Bread Loaf through the personal recommendation of Professor George P. Baker. Miss Spoor is a graduate of Willamette University and has studied in the Leland Powers School. She has studied costuming with Helen Harrington Boyd, with practical work in the St. James Theatre under the direction of the well-known scenic artist, Director Hansen.

In addition to his training at Harvard in The 47 Workshop and as Art Director of the Harvard Dramatic Club, Mr. Oenslager has worked with the Stuart Walker Stock Company, with Frank Zimmerer, and has twice visited Europe to study dramatic production. Last year he visited all the principal dramatic centers of Europe as the holder of the Sachs Travelling Fellowship of Harvard. His studies of the manners and methods of the theare in different countries have appeared in the Boston Transcript and the Theater Arts Monthly. He has been this year with the Provincetown Playhouse, working under the direction of Robert Edmund Jones and Kenneth MacGowan.

The Administrative Staff

Dean Davison, who will give a course in American Literature, will be assisted in the administrative work of the School by William T. Hade '26 and Thomas O. Carlson '25. The librarian will be Hazel S. Vaughn, of Quincy, Mass., assisted by Julia Carter, of Bridgewater, Mass., and Mrs. J. S. Kingsley, of Middlebury.

The hiking staff, in addition to Dr. and Mrs. Harrington who are in charge consists of Miss Lois Cuglar, Miss Lucille Martin, Thomas O. Carlson, and Reginald L. Cook, Middlebury '24. The Secretary of the School, Miss Helen W. Blanchard, reports that over 80 registrations have already been made and that inquiries are still coming in rapidly. A very attractive bulletin of the School may be had upon application at the Summer Session office.

Officers of the Inn

Bread Loaf Inn will be in charge this year of Professor J. J. Fritz, Business Manager of the College, with the assistance of Arnold B. Swift, Middlebury '22, Assistant Manager, and Mrs. Kate S. Holbrook, Housekeeper. Several Middlebury undergraduates and graduates will assist at the Inn in various capacities.

Racket Wielders Play To Tie With Worcester Tech

match was close but the visitor took the needed games to win.

With a chance for a victory on the Blue side and nothing better than a tie for the red and white the two remaining doubles combinations Rich and Hindes and Irons and Kranz met to decide the match. However, the visitors took the next three games for a tie.

The Summary:

The tennis team left yesterday for Springfield and Wesleyan.

Norwich Is Victor In Fourth State Series Game

An error in the seventh was turned into tallies by Norwich, but with this single exception, the two teams were fairly evenly matched. The cadets made the most of their opportunities; Middlebury's ball-tossers could not find any to use.

"Mush" Klevenow led the stickwork of the afternoon with two safe raps out of four credited chances. "Shorty" Rice tied with him in point of average, however, tapping one with two tries.

Score by innings:

Norwich	0	0	0	0	1	0	2	0	0	—	3

Runs by Boardman, Cliffe, Garrity; sacrifice hits, Kilbride, Crowley; base on balls, off Williams,, Witham 2; struck out by, Witham 5, Williams3.
